

RODEBJER IS LOOKING FOR AN INTERN FOR THE PATTERN DEPARTMENT

As an intern, your task will be to assist the garment technician in her work. This means that you participate in fittings, comment on samples, update measurement lists, measure samples and manage information in our PDM system Pisa. It is important for us that the applicant is flexible and willing to help where needed.

You should be a recently graduated student or have studied at least 1 year in product development, pattern making or equivalent. We are looking for a person who is structured, organized and attentive with the ability to work towards and keep deadlines at a periodically high pace.

Spoken and written English proficiency is a requirement. You should have good computer skills and any experience working with PDM business systems (like PISA) is preferred. A working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator is also an advantage.

The internship would be 3-6 months starting as soon as possible. Please note that the position is unpaid.

Please send your application 30th of November at the latest to Cristina Coll at cristina.coll@rodebjer.com

About Rodebjer

Rodebjer was founded in New York in 1999 by native Swede Carin Rodebjer. After being spotted on the streets of Manhattan wearing her handmade designs, Carin Rodebjer started selling her clothes to friends and to stores in New York and Stockholm. Today, Rodebjer is available in over 20 countries.

Rodebjer's quest is to enhance personalities by simplifying everyday clothing decisions through relevant, timeless and versatile fashion that meet the many needs of the modern woman.

Signature silhouettes include slouchy suits and sets, drapery caftans and easy-to-wear dresses and kimonos — clothes that easily moves from day into night and from work to leisure. Rodebjer is strongly inspired by the human rights and feminist movements, and by individuals with the courage to live by their own rules. Carin Rodebjer has won several awards and her clothes continuously receive positive reviews from the international fashion community.
